

i am restless and discontent. i may be the most uncomfortable experience anyone encounters in their lifetime. i am young, talented, and get aggressive when bored. i will question you, challenge you, and stare you in the eyes to ask for the truth. enough is never enough. i don't eat, i don't sleep, and i don't sit still. i want to change the world. but i still can't pretend to care if i don't give a shit. i am impatient and stubborn as hell. i won't lie to make you feel better. i believe happiness is for people with small minds who don't see the whole picture. i think depression is for everyone. i am not afraid to take a risk. i am not afraid of failure. i welcome it because if i am at risk of failure, it means i am doing something worth doing. i don't believe that i am special or important. but it is important for me to create things and share ideas, because in the end they are more powerful than any of us will ever be. i believe that the words you say to someone do matter, and if you say just one wrong thing to me i will remember it forever. i buy beautiful roses and let them die. and if you tell me to be patient i might begin to dream of slicing your tongue off.

Farida Amar